

KAREN CAMPBELL

M E D I A

Beware of Hypocrisy

Who is teaching us what about Christianity?

Beware of Hypocrisy: Who Is Teaching Us What?

By: Robert Waligurski

Wipf & Stock

Paperback

74 pages

ISBN: 9781532691737

$10.00

Contact:

Karen Campbell:

karen@karencampbellmedia.com

Surveys have shown that only about 10 to 30 percent of modern-day Christians have ever read through the entire Bible, much less extensively studied it. Instead, most rely on their church for the majority of their understanding of the teachings of Jesus. Exclusively relying on one institution for such vital information can be dangerous, yet this seems to be a trend in our society.

As an engineer, Robert Waligurski is naturally analytical, researching things he doesn't know. After 20 years of analyzing the teachings of Jesus, he became saddened by how much of what churches are teaching and doing appear to be contrary to the teachings of Jesus. Beware of Hypocrisy: Who Is Teaching Us What? was written to explain why this trend is dangerous, and to encourage Christians to study the New Testament, especially the Gospels, themselves.

"I wrote this book as a warning to those who learned all they know about Christianity from a church instead of through reading and studying the New Testament," says Waligurski. "Exclusively relying on one institution for such vital information can be dangerous, yet this seems to be a trend in our society. My hope is that this book will help you to understand why you should not fall into this trap."

After almost two thousand years of making assumptions and inventing doctrines, churches have subtly changed, over time, the teachings of Jesus into something different from what is presented in the Scriptures. Beware of Hypocrisy demonstrates this by analyzing the teachings of Jesus regarding a given topic as presented in the Bible, and then contrasting it with what churches teach and do regarding the subject.

The book concludes with encouragement from hope in the Word of the Lord. In addition, techniques for studying the Bible are presented, along with recommendations on Bible translations, online Bibles, and Bible apps.

KAREN CAMPBELL

M E D I A

Robert Waligurski is a senior design engineer at Safran, designing the interiors of Boeing and Airbus aircraft. He has a physics degree from the University of Illinois and three graduate degrees in engineering from the University of Southern California. He has held faculty positions at Chapman University College and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. He has spent over twenty years researching the Bible and ancient manuscripts, seeking the truth about God, Jesus, humankind, and reality.

www.bewareofhypocrisy.com

www.facebook.com/bewareofhypocrisy

twitter.com/bewareofhypocr1

www.instagram.com/beware_of_hypocrisy

Suggested Interview Questions for Robert Waligurski

- Tell us about your background. Were you raised in the church?
- As an engineer designing interiors for aircraft, how did you use your analytical skills to research for this book?
- You say this book is “a warning to those who learned all they know about Christianity from a church instead of through reading and studying the New Testament, especially the Gospels, themselves.” Why do you see the need for a warning? Isn’t the church supposed to teach us the truth?
- Why is it dangerous for Christians to exclusively rely on one institution for vital information?
- How is the book set up? What are some of the issues you discuss?
- What is one topic that the church most misrepresents or is contradictory to Jesus’ teaching?
- Is it possible for churches, like the Catholic church, to change?
- Why is it crucial for individuals to study the Scriptures for themselves?
- What advice do you have for people who want to dive into scripture and read what Jesus has to say about certain issues, but don’t know how or where to start?